INSTALLMENT NO. 4

HERE were many things to do on the morning that hell broke loose. If I ached before that, for better ired men and the proper tools, now the want was ond ache.

I had planned to see MacArthur within the next day two to be sure that he realized just how unprepared were in North Luzon, how low we were in everything t goes to make up a man's army.

But now that the word of Pearl Harbor had come m Manila, I knew I would soon be moving north, not ith to see MacArthur. So I told Johnny Pugh that I uld make a list of the things I needed from Mac- thur, and send him to Manila to try to get them.

I sat in my room writing that list, during the pre- wn of the first day of war. The phone rang twice ile I scribbled. Each call brought progressively worse ormation. The 4:50 a. m. call from Pete Irwin told that the battleship line at Pearl Harbor, and our big ckam Field air base, had been heavily bombed. A le after 5 o'clock Pete called again to say that Ad- ral Hart had received another message from Admiral mmel advising Hart not only that a state of war with pan existed but instructing him to "govern yourself cordingly."

Major Ships Move South

The latter phrase, I think, referred to a plan the vy must have had to withdraw its larger surface craft om Manila Bay at the start of hostilities. For on that st day of war all major surface ships started south.

As soon as I learned that Hickam had been bombed, alled Clark Field, but they had been informed. Johnny gh came over to my quarters about dawn. I gave him e list of desperately needed ammunition and equip- ent and told him to rush it to Manila.

"And while you're down there find Tom Dooley and nd him back at once," I ordered. Tom was in Manila ying goodbye to a pretty English girl who was sailing r Australia.

Shortly before 9 a. m. MacArthur's headquarters formed me that Baguio, the Philippine summer capital, miles above Stotsenburg, had been attacked by Jap mbers—my first real knowledge that the Jap is no pecter of non-military targets. MacArthur's head- arters warned me to take every precaution against a ssible Jap paratroop landing at Clark Field.

Gunners Get Instructions

I immediately deployed Col. Clinton Pierce's Twenty- vth Cavalry to the east of the field. I had no infantry ailable so I put my little battery of pack artillery at e west end of the big parade ground at Stotsenburg, nd instructed the gunners to set their fuses to zero and ad with shrapnel, so that they would be able to rake e parade ground if necessary.

After using the public phone system to issue the ecessary orders to my field commanders, I left my eadquarters and went over to my house to direct the ing and storing of some personal effects and to start ck- ng my field equipment. By 12:30 I was ready. was out on my porch, headed for my headquarters suddenly the thunder of a flight of approaching ...s hit my ears. I ran down on the lawn just as they ...e over the back-drop of the Zambales Mountains. ...re were about 80 of them, bombers mainly, but also ... bombers and fighters. They swept over Stotsen-

G. J. EICHHORN GETS HIGHEST HONOR OF FFA

Farming Achievements Rated Highest Among 200,000 Youths in U. S.

The highest honor within the gift of the Future Farmers of America fell last night on the shoulders of Gordon J Eichhorn, 20, of the Mautz-Owens road five miles south of Marion. He was selected as the Star Farmer of America at the national convention of the FFA in Kansas City, Mo, last night, a title that ranks him No 1 among the organization's 200,000 young farm members throughout the nation.

Gordon brings the Star Farmer title to Ohio for the first time. In the long road to his new honor, he first was selected three years ago as one of 166 boys out of 8,500 in the state farmer recognition. This year he was nominated as one of eight Ohio boys for regional recognition. When national FFA officials looked over the record of his accomplishments in agriculture and in his community, he was tabbed not only for regional but nationwide laurels.

Former Regional Winners

Marion county's nearest approach to Gordon's record came in recent years when Charles Mahaffey and Milton Fox, both of near Prospect, won the regional Star Farmer award in 1939 and 1941, respectively. Robert Lawver of south of Mt. Gilead won regional honors last year.

Along with glory, Gordon received a $500 award at the FFA convention last night, the eighteenth annual gathering held by the national organization.

Starting his serious farming career while taking a vocational agriculture course at Pleasant township school with Milford Schmidt as instructor, Gordon started out with one sow, two steers and 20 sheep, and operated these projects in conjunction with his high school course.

Expands Program

He developed these holdings by the time of his graduation, to 50 hogs, 27 steers, 26 sheep, two dairy cattle and 20 acres in wheat, soybeans, barley and corn.

As of today—two years after his graduation from high school—Gordon is married, owns 10 acres of his own and is worth $8,315, FFA records show. His present farming activities include 60 hogs, 90 sheep, 1,500 chickens, 52 acres of wheat, 67 acres of corn, six acres of barley and 52 acres of alfalfa and clover. His equipment is valued at $2,028.

For two years he was president of his local FFA club and a delegate to the state convention for three years.

Scope of Operations

In addition to his own farming, he farms 186 acres in partnership with his father J P Eichhorn, whose farm is near Gordon's on the Mautz-Owens road, rents a 40-acre farm from a neighbor and operates a 56-acre farm for another neighbor who is in the armed forces.

Gordon's attractive brunette wife was with him when he received the honor last night. Both of them had known he was to get one of four regional honors given by the FFA, but the grand award had been a carefully-kept secret until the time of the presentation. The $500 cash gift came from the weekly Kansas City Star.

Star Farmer Award Is Reward for Ability, Study and Work

By BOB BYRD

When Gordon John Eichhorn, 20-year-old Marion county farm youth, was called forward from a group of thousands in the auditorium of the nation's farm youth gathered at Kansas City last night and presented with the award that made him the Star Farmer of America, he probably forgot for the moment the long hours of extra work as a high school youth that made this outstanding recognition possible.

I talked to him one afternoon early last week at the newly-furnished farm home where he and pretty Jean DeLong Eichhorn, a bride of 10 months, make their home, and heard him tell in a matter-of-fact way about a schedule of high school activities that seemed almost incredible. At the time he was telling this story, he did not know he was to get the highest award the FFA can bestow, but it was apparent as he spoke that his interest in life is not in collecting honors and medals, but in doing things that bring him personal satisfaction.

To satisfy Gordon, a job must be done efficiently. It's almost a passion with him to plan a job in such a way that its fullest opportunities may be realized with a minimum of time and effort. This quality, plus all-around good judgment and good health, has proved to be a winning combination.

An hour's conversation with him will convince anyone that there is no magic formula behind his honor, but that there is a greater than average application of straight thinking in everything he sets out to accomplish.

Foundation Laid Early

The efficiency complex expressed itself in Gordon several years ago when he was laying the educational groundwork that has just paid off in such recognition. Edwin E Banning, superintendent of the Pleasant High school a few miles south of Marion where Gordon took all of his school training from first grade through to high school graduation, recalls that as an 11-year-old Gordon would stand around with grownups, "talking farming like an old hand" while the other boys his age played games. Like his father, he was a serious-minded person and always seemed interested in affairs beyond his years.

Then when high school days came he plunged into a study schedule that yielded him 23 high school credits in four years—an all-time record for the Pleasant township school—and he graduated as high student in a class of 52. He explains his five subject schedule through high school by declaring, "School had as much to offer I wanted to get some of all of it."

Not All Work

Atomic Rocket Bombs Coming Will Be Next Weapons of War

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—What will be tomorrow's weapons?

Two generals, Chief of Staff George C. Marshall and Chief of Air Forces H. H. Arnold, mention these:

Rocket-propelled weapons with atomic explosive.

Rockets streaking unerringly to targets, guided by autopilots made sensitive by electronic devices and other new instruments to the heat of factory furnaces, light and magnetism. They are so responsive that in a large room they aim themselves toward a man who enters, in reaction to the heat of his body.

Jet-propelled bombers flying in the stratosphere faster than the speed of sound and carrying bomb loads of more than 100,000 pounds. They will have sufficient range to attack any spot on earth. Already under construction are 45,000-pound bombs — and bombers to carry them.

Jet fighters within the next five years reaching the speed of sound, operating at 50,000 feet and capable of reaching targets 2,000 miles away.

JAP "THOUGHT" PRISONERS FREE

Some Held 20 Years Are Released by New Cabinet on MacArthur's Orders.

By The Associated Press

TOKYO, Oct 10—Liberated political prisoners emerged from behind the massive walls of four Japanese prisons today to the acclaim of welcoming Communist crowds shouting opposition to imperial rule—while a newly formed National Federation of Toilers arose to defend the imperial house and assail the Reds.

The Japanese navy's chief paymaster, Vice Adm. Ushinosuke Yamamoto, disclosed the navy's impounded fortune of several million dollars was acquired from conquered nations and from the Japanese people themselves, and was paid for abroad in now-worthless military currency and at home in promissory notes which never were redeemed.

Promoters of the newly-created federation resolved to "wage a determined fight against Communism which aims at extermination of our unique national policy under the emperor."

Military Clique Broken

The federation and another group favoring a drastic overhauling of the Japanese diet rose suddenly in uneasy Nippon today as the new liberal premier, Baron Kijuro Shidehara, told his people in a broadcast.

"The hold of the military clique and bureaucrats on political power has been broken and all politics and economics will be determined by the will of the majority."

Sixteen liberated prisoners walked through the gate of Fuchu prison today to be hoisted immediately to the shoulders of a cheering crowd of 300 Japanese Communists and Koreans.

Shouting "banzai for the release of fighters of the people's front," the crowd waved Red flags and Korean independence flags—then listened quietly while Communist Kyuichi Tokuda urged overthrow of the imperial system.

"The imperial system is the root of all evils," he asserted. Tokuda spent 18 years in prison for voicing such thoughts before General MacArthur's directives and Shidehara's new liberality gave him immunity.

U.S. Can't Keep Atomic Secret, Marshall Says

By the Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct 10—General George C Marshall says the secret of atomic explosive "will not be ours exclusively indefinitely."

The chief of staff's view, expressed in his biennial report, had added significance in view of President Truman's message on atomic power sent to congress last week.

In his message, Mr. Truman said scientists agreed that the theory is "widely known," that foreign research will come abreast of us in time. He urged international renunciation of the use of atomic bombs.

Marshall commented that "the tremendous military advantage of this terrifying weapon fell to us through a combination of good luck, good management and prodigious effort. The harnessing of atomic power should give Americans confidence in their destiny but at the same time we must be extremely careful not to fall victim to overconfidence."

It was at this point he made his statement that the discovery could not be kept exclusive.

Germany Outdistanced U. S.

In the years between the two World Wars, Marshall said, we permitted Germany to "far outpace" us in development of instruments with military use. German development of long-range rockets and pilotless aircraft stemmed from this peacetime research.

"The fact that we overtook Germany's head start on the atomic explosive is comforting, but certainly should not lull us again into a state of complacement inertia," Marshall continued.

In a section of his report devoted to "our weapons," the generals contested the belligerents in weapons inventions and improvements.

The Germans jet fighters went into combat first, but they were limited to a maximum endurance of a little over an hour. Ours, he said, "already had the endurance to fly non-stop from San Francisco to New York."

Another "noteworthy example of German superiority was in the heavy tank, he reported, adding that "only the summer of 1944 the Germans and Panther tanks outclassed our Sherman tanks in direct combat."

GENERAL CITES COMING AGE OF NEW WEAPONS

Declares Nation That Lags Behind in Defense Courts Disaster.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—General Marshall cautioned Americans today that a rich nation which lays down its arms in this age of terrifying and fantastic new weapons courts catastrophe.

The chief of staff said the United States should maintain a regular Army, National Guard and reserve of trained civilians so huge it could mobilize 4,000,000 men within a year.

It should not stint funds for intensive scientific research, Marshall asserted in his biennial report to the secretary of war, at a time when methods of attack hitherto unpublished may subject New York, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago or San Francisco to a rain of annihilation from points thousands of miles from this continent.

Marshall Recommends

Here is what Marshall thinks this country should do:

Provide money and means for continuous research into the military ramifications of man's scientific advance.

Provide a permanent peacetime citizen army, built around a corps of men who have received one year of compulsory military training.

Encourage the National Guard—it is "in the first category of importance" in the citizen army.

Maintain a regular army composed primarily of a strategic force, with emphasis on air power, part of it deployed in the Pacific and Caribbean.

Keep the training program abreast of technical developments and the resulting modifications of tactics.

"To prevent another international catastrophe," Marshall declared, "there is no alternative but that this nation must be prepared to defend its interest against any nation or combination of nations which might sometime feel powerful enough to attempt settlement of political arguments or gain resources or territory by force of arms."

In the past, he said, "we have ignored the hard realities of world affairs. We have been purely idealistic."

Marshall insisted that any hope for lasting peace must be predicated on the ability to enforce it with strength. He said the state department believes that a decision now to adopt universal military training would greatly bolster this country's efforts to obtain world organization.

"This war has made it clear that the security of the nation, when challenged by an armed enemy, requires the services of virtually all able-bodied male citizens within the effective military age group," Marshall wrote.

Volunteers Not Enough

"In war the nation cannot depend on the numbers of men willing to volunteer for active service; nor can our strength in peace.

"In another continental emergency, the experience of the [illegible] proves clearly that [illegible] of the nation's young men [illegible] of training would result in [illegible] in the first months of [illegible] preparing much of the [illegible] Army and the National Guard, and the trained reserve.

Jap Bombers Hit Clark Field

burg, shaking the ground, and let their bombs go on Clark Field—most of whose bombers were on the ground.

Bombardment Frightful

The Jap came to Clark Field with his biggest bombs. The very air of Stotsenburg rattled with concussion. In the midst of the almost uncontested raid my Filipino boy, Felemon San Pedro, ran startled from the house, his eyes like big black marbles. In his frenzy he had put on my steel helmet.

"Mother of God, General, what shall I do?" he shouted.

"Go get me a bottle of beer," I yelled. It seemed to help him. I know the beer helped me.

I drained it, handed him the bottle and walked over to my headquarters. The No. 1 gun of the battery protecting the parade grounds stood quite close to my headquarters. I went over and stood near it, watching the black bursts of our modest anti-aircraft fire trying to follow the Jap bombers.

Gunner Falls Nearby

And I was standing there when I heard the moist impact of metal against flesh and bone. I turned and saw one of No. 1's gunners falling near me. His face was a bloody blob. A bomb splinter had streaked all the way over from Clark Field, whose edge was 1,200 yards from us, and hit him in the lower forehead, just below his helmet.

Capt Fitch, the battery commander, and I leaned over the boy. His face was a sight.

"Get this man to the doctor," I ordered.

Fitch and someone else put their hands under the lad, but the boy then stirred, opened his eyes and wiped a dirty hand across his face.

"No," the boy said, sharply. "Stay by my gun . . . stay by my gun."

While this was happening, Tom Dooley drove up with a screeching of brakes and jumped out of his car. I saw from the direction in which he came that he must have driven right past Clark Field.

"Tom, you damned fool, you didn't drive past Clark during this bombing, did you?" I shouted at him angrily.

"Sure, sir," he said. "You sent me orders to report to you as fast as I could, and I was worse afraid of you than I was of those bombs."

Silver Stars Awarded

I stalked inside my headquarters, with Tom at my heels, and quickly wrote out the order which gave him, and the young gunner, Silver Stars. I guess they were the first decorations of the Pacific war.

We were in a war for which we were no more prepared than a child is prepared to fight a cruel and seasoned professional pugilist.

(TOMORROW: The Jap horde arrives on Luzon.)

THIS IS WHAT WAS GOING ON AT PEARL HARBOR on the morning of December 7, 1941, when Gen. Wainwright's phone rang at Fort Stotsenburg on Northern Luzon, Philippine Islands. In Gen. Murder Charge Filed in Texas Slaying

By The Associated Press

BEAUMONT, Texas, Oct. 10—A charge of murder was filed yesterday against Riley McCaine, 40, Houston tire salesman, in the death Sept 30 of Elnora Collins.

The charge was filed in the court of Justice of the Peace Horace Blades by Sheriff W. W. Richardson.

Beaumont officers said they would ask the federal bureau of investigation to join the nation-wide hunt for McCaine.

Detective Inspector C. V. Kern of Houston said fingerprints found in an abandoned car in Louisiana were those of Miss Collins, Houston loan office clerk.

Miss Collins' nude, partially burned body was found last Thursday in a lonely spot near Beaumont. She had been missing since the night of Sept 30, when, according to her friend who was with her, she accepted a ride from a man.

HUFFMAN TO RUN FOR SIX-YEAR TERM

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—James W Huffman was sworn in yesterday as senator from Ohio and announced he would be a candidate next year for the Democratic nomination for a full six-year term for the office.

He made the announcement to reporters a few minutes after he took his oath to succeed Harold H Burton, Cleveland Republican who resigned to become a member of the supreme court.

Huffman was appointed by Governor Lausche to finish Burton's term ending in January, 1947.

Senator Robert A Taft, Republican of Ohio, escorted Huffman to the senate dias where the oath was administered by Senator Kenneth McKellar, Democrat of Tennessee, president of the senate.

Huffman and Taft were accompanied to the dias by former Senator Vic Donahey, who is Mrs Huffman's father.

After the ceremony, Taft introduced Huffman to McKellar.

"He's Vic's son-in-law," Taft explained.

Earlier there was an informal reception for Huffman in Burton's old senate office.

Watching from the galleries as Huffman took his oath were Mrs Huffman, their two children, Peggy and Jimmy, and Mrs. Donahey.

After their arrival by train today from Columbus, the Huffmans and Donahey posed for pictures, then went to the Raleigh hotel where the new senator and his family will live temporarily.

...tion, Krug said, "in the event of prolonged and widespread labor disputes, extensive hoarding (of materials) serious disruption of the price structure, or other unforeseen circumstances."

The WPB chief reported that during the five years beginning in July, 1940, this country doubled its manufacturing output to hurl more than $186,000,000,000 of munitions against the axis

This was done, Krug said, by "superimposing war production on normal production, rather than substituting guns for butter."

In a report titled "wartime achievements and the reconversion outlook," Krug told the board that for the rest of this year government expenditures will shrink faster than business and private outlays can increase.

Krug Will Retire

Krug, who will retire from government when WPB is liquidated Nov 3, predicted that during the first three months of next year national income will level off at about $155,000,000,000, as compared with $207,000,000,000 when Germany surrendered That will be the turning point, he said

Krug estimated that three or four years of uninterrupted supply will be required to meet pent up demand for some goods.

"This," he said, "could readily warrant operations well above prewar levels in these industries for some years to come."

The WPB chief did not estimate the maximum extent of joblessness, but he predicted unemployment would increase until spring, then decline.

The key to reconversion, and the "big question mark," is in the heavy industries which were changed over completely to war production, Krug said. He stated,

"It is difficult to make predictions about automobile production until the Detroit labor situation clarifies."

The period of widespread shortages has come to an end, Krug said The country now has more aluminum and magnesium "than we know what to do with," enough copper and steel to satisfy demand.

Rubber—Sufficient for tires for new cars, but it will "take a little time" before replacement needs of cars on the road can be met in full.

Leather—Plentiful, "and it will show up in due course in increased quantities of civilian shoes"

Lumber—More than enough for current quarter retirements.

Textiles—"It will take the industry a long time to satisfy demand"

Building materials (other than lumber) and plumbing and heating supplies—Very scarce, but "active steps are being taken to expand supply."

Paper—Imports of pulp from Sweden are relieving shortages, except in newsprint, "which for a little time must continue to be restricted to recent levels of consumption."

The most serious remaining shortages are in tin, lead, natural rubber, manila fiber and antimony, Krug said.

Tigers and Cubs Settle World Series Business This Afternoon

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 10—It is exactly 74 years since the late Mrs. O'Leary's cow started in Chicago burned itself out, and today another local 'hotfoot" finally cools off in the seventh and payoff game of this richest of all world series

Now, although there have been some unkind remarks concerning the antics of the Detroit Tiger outfield, there is no cow involved in the current sizzler, in which the Tigers and Chicago Cubs collide at 1:30 p. m. in Mr. Wrigley's baseball pasture for the whole pot.

Thanks to the "Hanks," both of these ball clubs are still around to tangle for the $70,000 jack pot—the difference between the winners' $211,200 15 and the losers' $140,800 10 from the fanciest players' pool of all time, a gaudy $502,857 50 including the radio "cut." Of the total, the two clubs will get 70 per cent, the remaining 30 per cent going to major league clubs which finished in the first division.

These Hanks are outfielder Greenberg, the Detroit crusher, and pitcher Borowy, the Chicago ironman. And while there have been some hilarious goings-on through the first six scrambles of this silliest of all post-season sets, no one can blame either of the Hanks for any of them

Greenberg's Big Bat

If Greenberg hadn't been on hand with his big bat, the Tigers might have bowed out of this in four straight If Borowy hadn't been on deck to serve them up for the Cubs three times in the first half-dozen scuffles, the Chicago champs might be back on the farm right now.

Today, Borowy, the castoff from the New York Yankees, again warms up his overworked right wing and takes a crack at the toughest iron-man series trick ever tried in a series—pitching in three consecutive games. Only eight elbowers ever have won as many as three games in a single of these post-season classics.

Borowy, who has allowed five runs and 18 hits in the 18 innings he has toiled—the longest stretch of any series hurler—goes out for the third time in four days trying to lock up the Cubs' first world championship in 37 years.

The Cubs beat the Tigers in the 1908 series, four games to one repeating their 1907 triumph. The last time the clubs met in series play, 1935, the Tigers copped the set by a 4 to 2 margin.

Going to the post, the price is 3 to 2 against Borowy winning. It's not because his enemy elbower is Hal Newhouser, the fancy Detroit lefty who lost the opener to heaving Hank and then beat him in the fifth game, but simply because the bookmakers don't believe Borowy can pitch his way past Greenberg.

New Attendance Record

With the financial records already shattered all around the place, and the "take" set to rocket well over the million-and-a-half mark for the first time, the chances are today's get-together will also see a new all-time high in the number of customers.

Thousands lined up in front of the Cub ticket offices all Monday night to be there or thereabout when the ducats went on sale.

One "record" set for a series was that for courtesy. With the earlier games sold out, thousands of fans requesting tickets had been shut out. As a result, when a seventh game became necessary, the Cubs phoned all customers who'd been rejected previously and told them they were first in line for pasteboards for the payoff.

There's a possibility the boys may wipe out a few of the figures for playing baseball.

Most likely of these might be the number of hits, runs scored and runs batted in by individuals Stan Hack, with 11 safeties for the Cubs, it within one of the high for hits. Greenberg, with 7 runs, is breathing down the neck of Pepper Martin, the former Cardinal whiz-bang and record holder in that department for a seven-game series. Bill Nicholson, the Cub clouter, has knocked in seven runs, just one under the seven-game series tops

Greenberg, with one more extra base belt on top of his three doubles and two homers, can also come up even with Babe Ruth and Pete Fox, once with Detroit, in the hitting-for-distance race Greenberg, as has been hinted, already has one record all by himself—that for one man holding off a whole ball club for six games

Navy's Center Wins Plaudits As Week's Best Grid Lineman

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct 10—Dick Scott, Navy center, won honors today as "the lineman of the week" in the first Associated Press lineman poll of the college football season

Commander Oscar Hagberg, Navy coach, praised Scott to the skies for his play in the Midshipmen's 21-0 triumph over previously unbeaten Duke.

"Besides playing his position excellently," said the commander, "Scott intercepted a couple of passes and directed the defense activities of our team. He played a great game throughout"

Allison Danzig of the New York Times, Jesse Abramson of the New York Herald Tribune, Frank Gorcin of the Glens Falls, N. Y., Post-Star, and Clarence Scroggs of the Asheville, N. C., Citizen-Times also picked Scott as the week's standout lineman.

Pressing him closely were Warren Amling, Ohio State guard; Ernest "Bear" Knots, Duke guard; Mac Wenskunas, Illinois center, Earl "Red" Wheeler, Arkansas center; Dick Hollingshead, Yale tackle; Roger Desroches, Holy Cross tackle, Hank Walker, Virginia end; Bob Fitch, Minnesota tackle; Dick Duden, Navy end, and Jim Kekeris, Missouri tackle

Kekeris, a towering 280-pounder, accounted for Missouri's upset 10-7 victory over Southern Methodist with a 17-yard field goal. Previously his blocking had paved the way for Missouri's touchdown after which he also kicked the extra point.

Wenskunas, a discharged Marine, drew plaudits from Pat Harmon of the Champaign, Ill., News-Gazette. "His play at center for Illinois," explained Harmon, "was the difference between a 6-0 loss and a 26-0 walloping by Indiana."

Bert McGrane, of the Des Moines Register; Bob Hooey of the Ohio State Journal at Columbus and Paul Hornung of the Columbus Dispatch agreed that Amling virtually played two positions for the Buckeyes against Iowa "He was invincible in his own spot and aided the inexperienced tackle beside him," McGrane said.

Knott's great defensive play for Duke helped keep Navy from running the score. W. H Smith and Jack Horner, both of Durham, N. C., Herald, agreed.

Martin Meyer, Wisconsin tackle; Buster McClure, Nevada tackle; Captain Jim Callanan, Southern California end; and George Robotham, UCLA end, likewise received high praise from their coaches.

LA RUE 6-MAN TEAM WINS GAME 74-24

The LaRue High school six-man football outfit went to Woodstock yesterday afternoon and romped to an easy 74 to 24 victory as Jack Davis made six trips across the goal line and added six more points on drop kicks for a total of 42 for the game. This ran the speedy fullback's total for the season to 106 for three games played.

Kenny Jones, LaRue end, caught passes for two six pointers, and also caught two conversion heaves for 14 points. Allen scampered across on an end around play for a touchdown and Gillispie carried the ball on a triple reverse for another. Don Ledman while playing with the reserves took the ball across pay dirt on an end sweep.

The LaRue regulars played about half the game and were replaced at intervals by the second and third string. It was while the third stringers were playing that Woodstock got two of its touchdowns. A third was garnered off the second team and the last on a long pass while the varsity was back on duty.

Friday afternoon on the LaRue field the only two teams in Marion county playing the 6-man game will meet, as Claridon and LaRue lock horns at 3 p. m.

All Mid-State Grid Loop Teams To See Action on Friday

All teams of the Mid-State High school football league will see action this week-end. Mt. Gilead High school will play St. Mary under the lights at Harding stadium Thursday night, and on Friday afternoon Marysville will journey to Richwood.

Mt. Gilead will be fighting for their first victory of the season. So far the Indians have dropped games to Carey, Richwood and Danville and tied Crestline 0 to 0. In an effort to put more fight in his team, Coach King has benched all the seniors. The starting Mt. Gilead lineup will be: J. Tennent and Klingle ends, Kimmey and W. Campbell tackles, Taylor and Crawford guards, Gallecher center, N. Campbell quarter, Jarrett and West halves, and Burnell, full Marysville and Richwood each have won two victories this season. Marysville, playing two Class A teams is favored to take this game. It will mark the first league contest for the Ehlon coached team.

The league standing is figured on a point basis, two points for a victory and one for a tie. The following is the league standing to date:

Team	W.	L.	T.	P.
Richwood	1	0	1	3
Marion St Mary	0	0	1	1

St. Mary To Meet Mt. Gilead Here Thursday in League Tilt

By BILL COULTER

St Mary will be after victory number two Thursday night when they meet Mt. Gilead at Harding Stadium at 8 p. m. This will be the Irish's second game in the Mid-State league. Last week they battled to a scoreless tie with Richwood in their only league game of the season thus far. Two weeks ago Mt. Gilead, on the other hand, suffered a 20-0 setback at the hands of the same Richwood eleven The locals will not be at their full strength for tomorrow's fray due to the fact that Bob Wintersteller, tackle and halfback, is being bothered by nose and leg injuries acquired during the rugged contest last Friday night. The rest of the squad, however, appears to be in good shape.

The Irish showed noticeable improvement last week. Every boy played a bang up game and did his part well. Charles Dunn made a couple of nice long runs that aided the boys when they found themselves in trouble. This week they will be out to give the best they have and hope to come through with a victory.

Thursday night will be the parents' night in honor of the parents of the St. Mary lads. This will also ring down the curtain on the home activity of the Irish for the season. After this game St. Mary will play three more games, all on foreign soil.

SNATCHES OF SPORTS

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 10—On top of the news from Chicago that the major league club owners and presidents are none too happy about Happy Chandler's administration of baseball comes word from our old friend, Mr. Reliable Source, that the minors have the same idea for slightly different reasons .. So don't be surprised if some one gets up at the December minor league convention and proposes limiting the commissioner's jurisdiction even though nothing can be done at that time .. The minor leaguers are peeved at Chandler's declaration that their bonus rule is both unfair and illegal. They figure small independent clubs can't afford to pay bonuses and they'll be forced to do it if the "chain" clubs are given that privilege Add to that a rhubarb between Chandler and the baseball writers over World Series scoring and some hot words between Larry MacPhail, supposedly Happy's principal backer, and minor league boss W G Brumham, and you can see that Chandler won't have to go south for a warm winter.

When freshman Lou Kusserow of Columbia muffed a pass from center in last Saturday's Syracuse game and then tried to run the ball out from deep in the end zone, Coach Lou Little turned to assistant Buff Donelli.. "Send someone in there to bawl that kid out or else bring him out and do it," groaned Lou Just then he turned back to the field and saw Kusserow being hauled down on the Syracuse 14-yard line.. "Better not," Little decided. 'He's only 17 years old and you might hurt his feelings."

WRESTLES MARINE THURSDAY

Martino Angelo, the barefooted Italian who held the world's light heavy belt twice will oppose Sgt. Billy Fox in the two hour main event Thursday night at the Marion Armory. Angelo is the rugged type and one of the best men in the territory and may give Fox his toughest match in Marion. The Marine has proved very popular with the local fans and no doubt will be their choice next Thursday.

The one hour semi-final has all the earmarks of a main attraction as it brings back the Mad Russian, Leon Kirlinko, to meet the popular Pat "Tex" Riley of Texas. The Texan's temper is as short as the Russian's and most anything can happen in this match. A preliminary to bring lined up to start the show at 8:30. BUCKS' STAR BACKS READY FOR BADGERS

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10—Paul Sarringhaus and Dick Fisher again will be ready to go when Ohio State meets Wisconsin here Saturday.

Left Halfback Sarringhaus, injured in the Iowa game, romped through one of the fastest and toughest practice workouts of the season yesterday and appeared to be in fine shape.

His return shifted Fisher to the right halfback spot and that too strengthened the belief the Sarringhaus - Fisher combination would start against the Badgers.

Coach Carroll Widdoes indicated he planned to uncork some razzle dazzle against Wisconsin by addition of several new and spectacular plays designed to badger the Badgers.

Ticket Director Henry Taylor predicted 60,000 would see the game.

The first string backfield yesterday also included Robin Priday at quarter and Ollie Cline at Fullback.

Colonels Two Games Up on International Bears

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 10 — Frank Miller will be Manager Bill Meyer's selection to stop the rampaging Louisville Colonels tonight as the Newark Bears go into their final home game of the little world series, trailing two games to none.

Nemo Leibold, after two brilliant mound performances by George Diehl and Rex Cecil, may use either Dick Allahan or the veteran Mark Terry against the International League Bears

The Colonels triumphed in 11 innings last night, 5 to 3.

Michigan Meets Army in Top Intersectional Game of Week

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 10—The Western conference football brigade takes things a bit easy this week, insofar as title aspirations are concerned but some of the teams may run up against competition a lot stiffer than they'd find at home.

Michigan, once-beaten, but still a title favorite, is one example. The Wolverines meet Army at New York. Indiana's unbeaten but once-tied Hoosiers entertain Nebraska. Minnesota has Ft. Warren, Wyo., as a foe at home.

Only two conference games are on the card. Iowa plays at Purdue and Ohio State's defending conference champions entertain Wisconsin. Illinois and Northwestern are idle.

Of the entire schedule, the intersectional battle between Michigan and Army is the most outstanding, insofar as the midwest's status in national collegiate competition is concerned. Pep Talks at Half Win Games

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct 10 — Football pep talks at half-time are as much a part of the game as the old pigskin itself. Many a coach has turned seeming defeat into sweat victory because of a razor-sharp tongue.

One of the pep talk artists, many contend he had no close rival, was the late Knute Rockne Suffice to say his Notre Dame teams often came out hopping mad to pull a win out of the fire.

Among the many Rockne anecdotes is the time he stalked in at half time A hush settled over the room. The Rock, looking at nobody in particular, exclaimed in clear tones: "Football players? Ha, ha, ha!" Notre Dame won that game with points to spare

Amos Alonzo Stagg, 83-year-old dean of the sport, tells of the time he was coaching University of Chicago, in 1894. Chicago had been founded on an original gift of $600,000 by the late John D. Rockefeller. The Maroons were trailing on this autumn afternoon. Coach Stagg isn't certain ... thinks Wisconsin was the ... team.

Congress Seeks Way To Keep Atomic Bomb Control for U. S.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—Congress struggled today to devise firm controls over atomic energy at home and to keep this country in the forefront of scientific discoveries the world around.

A new note of urgency was lent the task by warning from Army Chief of Staff George C. Marshall in his biennial report that the possibilities of the future are "terrifying."

Here is how the two-fold problem is being tackled:

1. The house military committee went into secret session under a charge from Chairman May, Democrat of Kentucky, to speed action toward setting up a program for control of atomic power.

Specifically before the group is President Truman's week-old request congress set up a nine-member commission to handle all domestic phases of science's newest and most sensational discovery.

2 Members of two senate committees called on budget director Harold D. Smith for an answer to the question of who would have top word in running a projected national science foundation.

Endorsed by a succession of eminent scientists, the proposal has encountered a degree of apprehension among the experts over the possibility that the foundation might get involved in politics.

Several days of closed sessions were expected to be required for the house military committee to sift the recommendations and highly-technical explanations given it yesterday by the men who helped the bomb that blasted Japan out of the war.

All four witnesses heard during the single day of public hearings unstintingly recommended the legislation asked by Mr. Truman. They were Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Maj. Gen. Leslie R Groves, who directed development of the bomb; Dr Vannevar Bush, head of the office of scientific research and development, and Dr. James Conant, president of Harvard university.

All stressed the need for speed. The bill before the committee proposes creation of a commission with almost unprecedented power of control over everything directly connected with atomic energy.

It doesn't, however, deal with the international operations. Many members believe the legislation should specify that the secret of the atom bomb shall not be given foreign nations.

"Congress should have the final determination of who gets the bomb," commented Reg Elston, Republican of Ohio. "To give that power to one man is too much."

CHECK BLOOD STAINS IN VACANT HOUSE

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, Oct. 10—Union county officials investigating the bloodstains found in the vacant house in Jerome township, near New California, formerly occupied by Mrs Edna Warner, deceased, said last night that there had as yet been no "break" in the inquiry.

State highway finger print men were at the house yesterday checking on prints and a check-up is also being made on other angles of the case.

A window to the living room of the house, located five miles south of New California, was broken out and stains leading from the window to a storage room indicated the person breaking the window had been cut by the glass. There was a trail of blood from the storage room to a door to the outside.

The greatest point of interest and speculation centers on a large bloodstain found in the storage room where a board had been pried from the floor. Furnishings in the room had been disarranged and one theory is a struggle might have taken place in the room.

The program will be broadcast over WMRN. Arrangements are in charge of the Catholic activity committee composed of Henry Drake, chairman, L. A. Axe and Francis B Huber.

U. S. LOANS ABROAD STIR HOUSE GROUPS

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON Oct 10—The first peacetime effort to cut taxes ed today to a controversy over possible multi-billion dollar loans abroad. A house Republican group declared this country cannot "continue to play Santa Claus and remain solvent."

The Republican statement, made in a minority report on the pending $5,300,000,000 tax-trimming bill, came in the midst of efforts by Britain to obtain a loan here, and reports that Russia may make a new request for financial aid.

The ten G O P members of the house ways and means committee blamed what they termed "profligate spending" for a large part of the national debt and declared "Future reductions in taxes can only be made if the administration will cut wasteful and unnecessary spending."

The pending bill comes before the house tomorrow and is expected to pass and head for the senate before nightfall.

It provides relief from record wartime levies for both individuals and corporations, assuring every individual taxpayer a 1946 reduction of at least 10 per cent.

Denies Nazi General Ordered Yanks Killed

By The Associated Press

ROME Oct 10—Gen Gustav Von Zangen, who commanded a German army group in Italy, denied at the war crimes trial of Gen Anton Dostler today that the order to execute 15 captured American troops came from higher up.

Dostler, in charge of the German army near La Spezia where the Americans were put to death, is accused of the murders. Von Zangen, who was Dostler's superior, told the five-man U S military court he never heard of the executions until war crimes investigators interrogated him in June.

A signed statement by Dostler, introduced as evidence, asserted there "were strict orders from the fuehrer according to which saboteurs were to be annihilated." The Americans had landed behind German lines in full uniform to blow up a railroad tunnel.

By The Associated Press

The board sent a telegram to Col Chester W. Goble, state selective service director, stating its stand. At selective service headquarters in Columbus it was said the telegram had not arrived late in the morning.

Crawford County Board Plans To Resume Fair

Special to The Star

BUCYRUS, Oct 10—Members of the newly organized Crawford county fair board made an inspection Tuesday of the grounds at Camp Millard which are expected to soon revert to the county, with the view of determining what repairs and work will be required before the grounds can again be used for a county fair.

At a meeting Monday night the board reported interest mounting in the county fair and voted to work toward resumption of the fair program next year.

Contacts with racing interests have already been made with the view of procuring high grade racing programs when the fairs are resumed.

Race tracks on the ground will require rebuilding and a number of buildings will be removed before the grounds are in condition for county fair purposes, members of the board have reported.

The grounds were recently declared as surplus by the army but formal return of the camp grounds to the county is still in the offing.

CHANDLER TO QUIT SENATE POST SOON

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 10—Sen. A. B. (Happy) Chandler plans to resign from the senate "soon" to devote full time to his $50,000 a year job as baseball commissioner.

The Kentuckian made that announcement yesterday at a major league meeting, saying that "with the war over, I feel that I can step down from the senate."

Although a reliable source said he would resign Nov. 1, Chandler would not confirm the exact date. He added he would mail his resignation to Kentucky's governor, Simeon S. Willis at Frankfort, where it would be announced officially. A league draft meeting will be held here Nov. 1.

Chandler told questioners at yesterday's league meeting that he knew nothing of a reported misunderstanding between him and club owners which was said to stem from a request from the senator that world series umpires receive higher pay.

"It was a fine meeting and I am getting 100 per cent cooperation," he said.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

"WHATEVER it is," I told my father in an answering murmur, "I shall attend to it promptly."

"I know that, Dearest," he said, and then, to my gratification went back to his luncheon plate not clearing it, but eating enough to insure his freedom from the headaches which invariably follow his abstinence from needed food.

But it was not until we had risen from the luncheon table, and Charles and Frankie were clearing the dishes away, that he found the opportunity to tell me what he wished of me.

"I want you to get hold of Mary," he said, 'and ask her to take everybody down to her apartment save Katharine and Jack. Richard and yourself I want her to keep them there until you telephone them to come back here will that be possible?"

"I am sure it will," I answered promptly. "She has no matinee today, and it will be a perfectly natural thing for her to invite her grandmother, her brother and her cousins down to her own apartment."

'Good!" he commented in his invariable fashion "But," he added, 'can you impress upon her that I especially wish no chance of her or Noel coming back here until I send for them?"

Pulses Quickened

My pulses quickened again at that message, but I tried not to betray my interest.

"I can promise you that," I told him, and this time his "Good!" was especially emphatic.

It was but a few minutes afterwards that I saw him speak to Katharine, evidently putting a question She gave an assenting nod, and then he went to my mother-in-law's chair, giving her the formal 'bow from the waist" which she loves.

"Dear Lady," he said, "If you are ready, I shall be glad to escort you into the other room and hear your message."

Katharine, at her side, unobtrusively help her to rise from the big low arm chair, and my father ceremoniously offered her his arm.

They went into the next room together, and when the door had closed behind them, I saw that every pair of eyes in the room, including my own, had watched them go

But it was Faith who broke the silence

"Why are my grandaddy and grandsire going away by themselves," she queried "Are they going to talk Christmas secrets?"

'Something like that," I said 'If you'll come over here, I'll tell you 'bout it"

She ran oved to me, pausing however, to look contemptuously at the baby's high chair which the waiters had brought to the luncheon table for her

"They thought I was little enough for that," she said. "I guess I showed 'em, didn't I?"

'I guess you did, Darling," her father commented from his wheel chair, in which he had followed her over to my side, and I caught back the automatic reproof on my lips Time enough for discipline, I told myself, when I had her back home again

'I didn't even have to have a telephone book under me," Faith went on, preening herself visibly, "and do you know what?"

Dramatic Suspense

She addressed both her father and me, and waited with dramatic supense for our answer.

"No, tell us," Dicky and I said together, and I was conscious that all other conversation had stopped, while everyone else in the room watched the child so idolized by all of us.

"I didn't have to use my napkin for a feed bag like a horse," she went on "I didn't have to have it tied around my neck. I had it folded on my lap, just like the grown-ups."

"You almost always do," I told her absently, and then gave an imperceptible signal to Dicky

"Can you guarantee an explanation that will mean silence?" I asked, and he nodded emphatically

"You bet," he said "Come, Faith, help me steer my wheel chair!"

She gig'led ecstatically and clambered into his lap while I stood up and spoke to Mary, with my father's admonition in mind.

"Will you help me put these chairs back and the flowers in place?" I asked.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN BUNDESEN, M. D.

Asthma

Some interesting facts have been brought out by a report concerning the treatment of asthma in soldiers who were returned from overseas duty because the asthma became so severe that it kept them from further army activity. Naturally, in most instances the symptoms continued even after the men returned to this country The great majority of the soldiers had been on duty in the tropics.

In about two-thirds of the cases, the men had had asthma before their entry into the army In some instances, however, the asthma had ceased during civilian life, but had recurred.

Asthma, as you may know, is a condition in which there are attacks accompanied by coughing, shortness of breath, wheezing and sometimes slight fever.

A careful study of the cases revealed that the things which seemed to have brought on the attacks were climate, dust, and infection. By climate is meant either great amounts of moisture in the air with high temperatures and daily rains over a prolonged period of time, as is usual in the tropics, or could, damp weather with frequent rain

In some of the men, the attacks occurred when they were exposed to cold and damp weather with frequent rain In about nine out of every ten instances, climate alone or in combination with dust and infection was the cause of the attacks

When the men were returned to this country, a variety of treatments was employed to relieve them The patients were put in hospitals in relatively dust-free, clean, bare rooms Hair pillows were used instead of pillows containing feathers

There are a number of drugs which have been employed to relieve attacks of asthma. These include potassium iodide, ephedrine aminophylline and epinephrine The epinephrine given by injection under the skin was used repeatedly to give temporary relief from the symptoms

Dust-extract injections were given to about one-eighth of the patients while in the remainder a dust extract mixed with a vaccine made up of streptococcus, staphylococcus, and similar germs was employed.

It was interesting to note that the condition was cleared up completely in about one-eighth of the patients and they were able to return to military duty. In five out of every eight cases the attacks of asthma became less frequent were shorter and less severe The treatment brought no benefit to about one-fourth of the cases

Hence, it may be seen from these facts that asthma is a condition that is difficult to treat. Many of the patients will respond to the use of drugs, freedom from exposure to dust, and similar measures However, it would appear that much more study is needed to determine exactly what produces the asthma before permanent cures may be obtained.

READYING THE ATOMIC BOMB

Shipments To Atomic Bomb Plant Handled with Care

Sock-Em-Sam Meter Registered Stress and Strain on Rail Cars Carrying Parts.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

OAK RIDGE, Tenn., Oct. 10—A sock-em-Sam meter about the size of a small radio rode on the freight cars that brought strange and hitherto unheard of parts to the vast atomic bomb plants here.

Sock-em registered how hard every bump was, whether the trip was 100 or 1000 miles. He was concealed in the car. The railroad men didn't know where or when, but it gave them incentive to be extra careful in switching the cars.

Many of these rare fabrications were shipped on cars equipped with special springs. In one of the plants here, there was no item of equipment of major importance that was not both new and different.

Many Items New

Although this plant alone carried thousands of different types of spare parts, there were fabrications so unusual and difficult that only one could be made in time to meet the rush requirements. Some other parts were made in numbers of only a few hundred each.

Safe transportation by freight, where the parts were bulky, became a major need. The railroads did a perfect job under the department of procurement and delivery, headed by Col. W. J. Williams, of Spaulding, Ala.

"It is my opinion," he said, "that without free and independent enterprise and thinking we never could have done this job."

The Army went to manufacturers and asked them to make things they had never heard of and many of which had never before been made at all. The manufacturer had to take on faith the promise that his contribution would be worth while. He could not be told what it was for.

Most of them took the attitude that, if it can be done, we will do it. The head of one great company signed a contract to do one of the seemingly impossible jobs before he was told even what was to be made.

Time Big Obstacle

Time was always a big handicap. The industrialists would give the quickest time they figured to produce the part or parts, only to be told that was not fast enough. Many means were adopted to secure the necessary speed-up. Sometimes it was the top priority which the atomic bomb had above all other wartime projects. Manhattan, the camouflaged name for the project, got to mean green light in industry.

But this was a dangerous nickname for secrecy and wherever possible the officers in charge took lower priorities so as not to attract undue attention.

Some of the officers were manufacturers in private life. More than once one of them stepped into a plant like his own to reorganize production and do the job on time.

It is notable that the industries never failed on the jobs assigned. In some cases plants were erected especially to make new kinds of chemical compounds. Notable among these were cooling compounds to replace water for that purpose.

DIES IN ROOMING HOUSE

By The Associated Press

ERIE BUYS HUGE WAR CAR FLOATS

Railroad Purchases 3 from U. S. for $295,500.

CLEVELAND Oct. 10—Three of Uncle Sam's war vessels that never lost an inch of paint or fired a gun are donning civvies and going to work for the Erie Railroad.

They are car floats, those long steel hulks with railroad tracks that are used for carrying railroad cars about New York harbor in delivering freight. Offered for sale by the U. S. Maritime Commission when the wars ended, the Erie's bid of 295,500 for the three boats was accepted. To fit them out for service the Erie will have to equip them with mastic tops, platforms, tracks, etc., at an additional cost of $87,000.

In war this type of vessel was towed across the ocean and used for carrying men and equipment to invasion points, and as landing piers and docks.

Two of these floats are now being fitted with tracks and made ready for railroad service at Wilmington, Del., and one at Jersey City, N. J.

Waterproof clothing—thanks to chemicals—will mean new jobs.

Molded furniture—through chemicals. More jobs for workers.

Insectfree shows—made possible with chemicals. Still more jobs.

Goodbye to mosquitoes—with chemicals. Still more jobs.

Making Postwar Jobs—Out of Chemicals

WHAT WILL the employment situation be — now that Victory has been won? Will there be enough jobs for returning soldiers, sailors, war workers?

No one can say, exactly. But this we do know: business management, in scores of industries, has long since laid plans for new products, new ventures, new services, that will make jobs by the thousands by creating new demands.

Take the chemical industry. Not only will it continue as one of America's basic job-makers, but from chemical research have come scores of new products that will mean thousands of new jobs in the future—products many of which were little more than dreams before the war.

Imagine your home rid of moths and mosquitoes. Specially treated clothing that will let you stroll in the rain and stay perfectly dry. Chemically treated pine furniture, hard as ebony, on which scratches and blemishes will not show.

Think of scuffproof shoes. Or shrinkproof woolens. Of window screens that won't rot or rust. All these things—and many others—will increase the demand for chemicals — and demand for goods makes jobs.

The chemical industry is only one of many along the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Nickel Plate, and the Pere Marquette that have planned for postwar employment.

And, now that the war is over, the chemical industry and other industries throughout the country will put into operation their plans for the jobs and opportunities all of us want.

"Biggest thrill of my life," was the way Coast Guardsman John T. Coleman, coxswain of 432 Park street, described the initial landings on Japan recently as he sailed into Tokyo Bay aboard the transport U S S. Samuel Chase, according to a message received here from the U. S. Coast Guard public information office of the Tokyo area. "It's hard to realize the war is really over when less than a month ago we went through all that hell at Okinawa," the veteran sailor added. He was referring to the 14 sleepless nights spent in Okinawa waters recently where the ship was under almost constant night attack by Jap suicide planes.

The Chase was the first Coast Guard-manned vessel to bring occupational soldiers to the Nippon land and it carried the famous 182nd division from the Philippines to the Jap homeland. Coleman's ship was dubbed the "Lucky Chase" by Army GI's after an enemy torpedo whizzed between the anchor and the bow of the vessel, leaving it unharmed. It participated in five major invasions prior to the Okinawa ordeal.

activities and still find time for such extras as class plays. "If by a time he has missed the support to get to play rehearsal on time," his mother said. "But he never complained. The mystery to me is when he found time to study his lines for a play—he seemed able to read over something a few times and have it memorized."

The ties that bind the Eichhorn family are just a bit closer than those in the average home because of the tragic death of three young brothers within a year's time in the influenza epidemic of World War I. When Gordon was born he became the family's only son, and an unusually close father and son relationship developed in the years that followed. Gordon has one sister, Mrs. Josephine Kyle of Columbus, a graduate X-ray technician.

His Farming Formula
Gordon sums up his views of farming as follows: "It has always been my aim to improve the productivity of a farm." He explained that his pleasure and satisfaction in farm work have come from seeing a farm produce efficiently—getting more production for the same amount of time and energy."

He believes a college education might have helped him achieve his efficiency goals, and at the time he even thought he might like to become an agricultural extension agent, but circumstances at home made him feel he should forego college training. However, he continually adds to his fund of information with bulletins, farm magazines, commenting that the latter, in his opinion, is probably the greatest teacher of all.

For America's farm youth he sees many new frontiers and an opportunity for them to find permanence and satisfying [illegible]. Pointing out that most farms have been depleted by the forced production program of the war years, he gets enthusiastic when he speaks of how these farms can be built up and made highly efficient through good cropping programs, drainage and weed control, soil and water conservation and the intelligent application of lime, fertilizer and manure

No Large Scale Aims
Gordon's current thinking isn't along the line of a huge farm layout with many hired helpers. He feels that approximately 200 acres is the size for a one-man operation large enough to justify the investment in a full line of machinery and yet small enough to permit one man to operate it with the help of possibly one extra person for seasonal work. He feels that size operation also would allow some time for custom work. That, with livestock to transform the crops into a marketable item that will yield the most revenue, is his idea of the farm operation he would like to carry on.

He and Mrs. Eichhorn live in a small, comfortably furnished farm house on a 10-acre tract near the 186-acre farm of his parents. He operates his father's farm on shares, and already has taken over all his father's machinery. Profits [illegible] the activities he and Mrs. Eichhorn [illegible] They are active in Epworth church and Gordon is president of the Young Married People's class of the Sunday school. They are active members of Bethlehem Grange, and Gordon is a president of the Pleasant Township Farmers' Institute.

CIO Gives

CIO men and women know the job of rebuilding a world in which men of good will may find peace and security does not end with victory. They know we must still extend our aid, not only to our fighting men, but to our allies . . . That we must keep strong our faith in those causes for which we fought in Europe.

Special labor foreign relief projects that this year will total almost four million dollars are allocated from union-labor contributions by the National War Fund represented by your Community War Fund. The high standard of giving maintained by CIO members has made these special labor foreign relief projects possible. Through them we again demonstrate our realization that obligations of nation to nation, peoples to peoples, does not end with the quieting of guns.

That is another reason why As Long As It Takes CIO Gives.

"He first tried to get it by threatening The Associated Press directors with criminal prosecution. When they refused to be intimidated he feared to go before a jury and had recourse to the statutory court.

"It will come out that both he and (former attorney general) Biddle said that the suit was brought to get this service in Chicago, and would be dropped if the service were furnished.

"What he ignored was that the decision just handed down also brings The Associated Press service to the Washington Times-Herald and to two Hearst newspapers that have not been able to get it.

"The Associated Press with its great Washington staff is of infinitely more value in Washington than in Chicago. I would always have been glad in a personal sense to let Washington and Chicago both have the service. Such a trade, however, would have been injurious to The Associated Press and I never would consent to it even under threats."

Interim Senator from Ohio

THE appointment of James W. Huffman, his commerce director, seems to have given Governor Lausche a way out of the political dilemma created by Harold H. Burton's elevation to the United States Supreme Court. As a senator, Mr. Huffman probably will stand somewhere between Governor Lausche's position in party politics and the position of his famous father-in-law, Vic Donahey. Through association, it may be assumed, Mr. Huffman probably has learned something about his father-in-law's peculiar art in politics, which was to please many and disappoint few.

It was essentially the art of seeming to be of the people—the common touch—without getting involved in their squabbles and controversies. Ohio's new senator was his father-in-law's executive secretary for a time; that may help. If he will look up the Donahey voting record in the United States senate, where his father-in-law represented Ohio from 1935 to 1941—a period of sizzling controversy during which the New Deal tried to make over America—he will discover a curious thing.

On a list of 150 key issues that came before the senate for decision during those troubled years, Vic Donahey's opinion was not recorded on 55 separate occasions. He was neither for nor against. He kept his constituents guessing. But that all happened a good many years ago. Since then, Ohioans have become accustomed to being represented in the senate by men with opinions. Mr. Huffman, no doubt, will take his cue from them, rather than from the Donahey legend.

Atomic Socialism

THIS government's natural and proper hope of keeping the secret of the atomic bomb's manufacture out of unscrupulous hands threatens to lead to government control of atomic energy in all its other potential uses. President Truman's proposals to congress for controlling the bomb deal with some other explosive possibilities.

The scientists who learned the secret of releasing atomic energy were concerned only incidentally with the manufacture of bombs. Until governments took over their research, it was objective—a search for knowledge. Many of the scientists wish it could have stayed that way.

Their ultimate goal was the boon to humanity that would result from learning how to tap an inexhaustible source of energy. In the United States during the early years of atomic research no one proposed that atomic energy should be nationalized.

It has not been proposed that coal or oil, the nation's greatest sources of energy now, should be nationalized. Yet both are prime sources of military power and wrought more war destruction than atomic energy.

In all probability, the manufacture of atomic bombs will not remain a closed secret long. If the source and processing of the materials and their uses must be controlled by government, then it should be made explicit authority is created only for the purpose of protecting the secret, not for the purpose of establishing atomic socialism in the United States. Once the military advantage of being in exclusive possession of atomic bombs is gone, as it surely will be gone eventually, the United States government will have no more right to monopolize atomic energy than it has to monopolize coal, oil, the automobile industry, the airplane industry or any other national resource.

The Moral of All the Stories

GEN. JONATHAN M. WAINWRIGHT'S personal account of the events that led up to the surrender of his forces on Bataan and Corregidor is so vital a part of the historic record that every detail will be under close scrutiny.

Already, in the first installments of the general's version, the moral of his story—the moral of all the stories of events in the early days of the war—is plain. The United States had ceased to be dynamic in matter of its defense. This country had a Maginot Line complex, but no Maginot Line.

Gen. Wainwright points out that the plan for defense of the Philippines in the event of Japanese invasion was a passive withdrawal to Bataan peninsula and a last-ditch stand, until relief could be sent from outside. When command of the forces in the Islands passed to his hands, he resolved to modify the existing plan to include attack. He and Gen. MacArthur agreed that mere defense could avail nothing against a determined enemy.

What happened is familiar history, but there is danger that the happy ending which victory has supplied may obscure the tragic beginning. At the outset of the war, determined enemies took shrewd and ruthless advantage of the fact the United States was mentally and physically unprepared to fight for its existence. They gambled on their conviction that it could not shake off its lethargy in time to overcome the early advantages they were sure to gain by virtue of being first to strike. They lost, ultimately, but before they surrendered they impoverished the Allies as well as themselves—and if they are permitted another chance they still might win.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Gen. Marshall and the Air Corps.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 — The official story of how we won the war, out today in the form of General Marshall's report, will light sparks of indignation within the war department—sparks yet invisible to the public perhaps but likely to spread to cleansing proportions. (Fire cleans well.)

You may see plainly behind this report the whole trouble with that greatest branch of government, greatest in men and money. If you can read between the lines with a studied eye you can also see why the joint chiefs of staff hid since April the demand of fighting generals for a single defense department.

The Marshall report simply neglects to notice the part the air corps played—the decisive part, which an outsider may discern with the naked eye if he has read the news accounts of the war.

Listed In Secondary Role

When the chief of staff does mention the air force it is always as if it was a step-accessory to the victory. The general or whoever composed the document for him is still back in the days when the effectiveness of air bombing was undetermined, when it had never won a war. Since then it has indisputably won the war against Japan and the results in Germany have been checked on the ground, not from high altitude photographs.

The decisive nature of airpower has been established as a provable new principle of warfare. The German generals are generally accepted by military men as a small lot. They have—or had—unbound imaginations on the military art up to the point of the greater conceptions such as overall strategy. The Germans make only the big mistakes (invading Russia, not invading England.)

They know what broke their back and they all put some phase of air power, first, second or third on their lists along with the stupidity of Hitler strategy. In interviews afterward, they broke down and wanted to talk about their trade, as people interested in their own specialties will.

The interview with Generals Jodl, Runstedt, Thomas, Halden, Von Pahl and even Hjalmar Schacht, the economist (probably the best mind in Germany) all attributed German defeat to "bombardment of factories and next bombardment of transport" (Thomas), "air superiority" (Von Pahl), "bombing the decisive factor" (Schacht) "air destruction of the German fuel structure through strategic bombing of oil won the war in Italy" (German air general there.)

The Germans, it develops now, moved very few of their industrial plants underground because they did not have the men and materials for such extensive new construction. They depended on rebuilding as their main hope against bombing, and as our air strategy (Gen. Spaatz, coming head of Army air) detected that decision, our bombers started coming back as soon as the destroyed factory was about half rebuilt.

A Holding Movement?

The only tribute to the air corps I noticed particularly in the Marshall report was their rescue of the ground forces at Salerno. He left me with the impression he thought the strategic bombing of Germany was a holding movement until the ground forces could invade.

With such ill-logic, he might have called MacArthur's arduous island hopping and the whole war against Japan as a holding movement for the atomic bomb.

The significance is this:

Marshall in this report represents old school tie in the army, a grey tie. He is of the conservative type of older generals. In the past era of ditch warfare, artillery barrages and cavalry, his mind was formed like those of many another among the joint chiefs of staff. They do not grasp the strategic significance of most recent events. (I hear Generals Eisenhower and MacArthur do.)

The air corps is composed mainly of young men who know the new fighting because they gained their mentally formative experience in this era. They are the Billy Mitchell type, the Doolittles.

A Separate Department

Now this new plan for national defense, the plan which has been suppressed by the joint chiefs of staff who have refused even to pass it on to the President, would give the air corps the standing of a separate department within the one big defense department. They would be equal to the ground forces and the Navy under one head. The older generals like old ways best.

Billions are being recommended for defense. They will be wasted unless the single department idea goes through, and the young men have their chance, for there is no other way available now to get fresh, experienced brainpower to the top of national defense.

Incidentally the recently published rumors of Eisenhower taking Marshall's job are true, and while the switch was until recently planned for the first of the year, it may now come sooner.

Eisenhower for President?

By JACK STINNETT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—The Washington grapevine, that sprawling creeper that feeds mostly on the juice of its own sour grapes, has it that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower soon will make another trip home and at that time a group of Republican leaders will offer him the 1948 presidential nomination.

This in itself isn't earth-shaking. The possibility already has been kicked all over the place.

Coupled, however, with the haste with which senate Republicans rushed to the defense of Gen. Douglas MacArthur after the state department took him to task, the rumor takes on significance.

The significance is that GOP leaders aren't satisfied with any of the immediate prospects on the home front and are spreading the welcome mat for both of our greatest war heroes.

It's no secret that in spite of the length of time before the 1948 elections and the certainty that political winds will shift many times before then, Republican weathermen are plenty worried over the popularity of President Truman.

What the Republicans know they will need to do is to balance the other side of the ticket with a man whose popularity is as great or greater and whose ability as a leader is apparent.

Who could come closer to filling that bill than the hero of the western front or the top man on the march up the road to Tokyo?

Looking back down the years, the Republicans note that every war in our history except World War I has produced a hero President. Three of these, Washington, Jackson and William Henry Harrison, were before the time of the Republican party. Of the two since the Civil War, Grant was elected for two terms and talked strongly for a third. Theodore Roosevelt served almost four years of one term, was elected to a second, and still had enough power left in 1912 to tear the party to pieces when it went against his wishes.

GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER

Important Precedents

Those are precedents that can't be overlooked, and the situation following World War I doesn't disprove the rule at all. In 1920, and in succeeding election years until 1932, the Republicans didn't need a hero and the Democrats couldn't find one.

Both MacArthur and Eisenhower have unequivocally denied any political aspirations, which is easy enough to do in answer to a press conference question and in no way dishonest. Having the nomination urged upon them with an appeal to their patriotic duty to serve their country further would be a horse of another color.

Observers here are positive that Republican leaders will concentrate on Eisenhower first as the most likely vote getters of the two. In any event, on his next visit to the United States, the political pulse-takers will be at his heels constantly.

So Practice Hard, Sonny!

By Jack Stinnett

WHEN President Truman moved into the White House a story went around that he played the piano by ear and once picked up pocket money playing jazz in a Kansas City safe.

On numerous social or public occasions since coming to the national capital, Mr. Truman has obliged photographers by sitting at the piano and running off a few chords.

This may have given rise to the conclusion he was one of those ear-endowed devotees of boogie-woogie. Nothing could be further from the truth.

The President, being a good fellow and enjoying light fun as well as the next, can rattle off a barbershop chord and even join in the vocals.

The truth is, however, that President Truman loves to play and listen to good music. It is his chief recreational delight and he got that way through a training as traditional as that which would be given your kid, mine, or the one next door.

When he was 10, his mother decided that he and his sister Mary Jane should have music lessons.

There is another apocryphal story that bespectacled young Harry was constantly getting into fights with boys who teased him about the music roll he carried. This isn't so because we have his mother's word for it that Harry's youth was remarkably free of fisticuffs.

Nevertheless Harry stuck to his lessons until well into his teens. He showed considerable aptitude, but nothing that resembled genius. According to report, his teacher was a strict classical disciplinarian.

Harry emerged from these years of tutoring a capable pianist, playing strictly by reading the notes, but he came out with something more important—a deep love of good music which has increased with the years and which he has passed on to daughter Mary Margaret.

There has always been a piano in the Truman home and in the present domicile there are several, including one in the President's room and one in Mary Margaret's.

The President's favorite composer is Chopin and his favorite compositions are said to be that composer's Waltz in A Flat, Beethoven's Sonata in C Minor and Mozart's Sonata IX for Piano.

At one time or another the President has heard virtually all of the great pianists. He is said to consider the late Joseph Lhevine, a Russian, one of the greatest.

There are thousands of musicians and music lovers like Harry S. Truman, but so far as I can find out, he is the first in our times who has lived at 1600 Pennsylvania avenue.

James, 63, of Meeker, who claimed the corn cutting championship of the county among men 60 years or older, defeated 23-year-old Carl Borland in a three-hour contest on the Wesley King farm in Richland township. The finish was close, with Borland credited with an even 24 shocks while James cut 24 shocks and three armloads of the twenty-fifth.

Bucyrus High school football team went into a tie for first place in the North-Central Ohio league by defeating Delaware at Bucyrus, 28-0. This made two won and none lost for Bucyrus with Ashland credited with the same record and Marion one game won and none lost. In a non-league game, Findlay defeated Marion on the local grounds, 19-6.

Codes and Ciphers

Here Are Some Samples of How They Work.

By HERMAN R. ALLEN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—Codes, the old stand-by of the spy thriller, have been top news recently.

First it was disclosed that Japanese Admiral Yamamoto's plane was shot down because American Intelligence had broken a Japanese code. Then a magazine writer declared that we had cracked a Japanese code before Pearl Harbor and could have prevented that disaster.

A code is usually composed of words or jumbled groups of letters or numerals that stand for a word or phrase, or perhaps a whole order. It is distinct from a cipher.

A cipher is composed of individual letters or numerals. Each letter or numeral stands for a single letter.

In one type of code the word "horse" might stand for "battleship," the word "desk" for "cruiser" etc. In another, "battleship" might be represented by "AAAAA" and "cruiser" by "AAAAB." Or you might use numerals—"11111" and "11112" etc.

The disadvantage of a code is that everyone using it has to have a bulky code book, but a good code is virtually unbreakable. The only sure way is to steal a copy of the code book, and they're hard to come by.

None Too Tough

On the other hand, it is generally agreed that no cipher has ever been invented that can't be deciphered—eventually. Users simply hope that by the time an intercepted message is deciphered it will be out of date. The advantage to most ciphers is that the key can be carried in one's head and can easily be changed.

The simplest kind of cipher is the "single substitution." In this you scramble the alphabet so that one letter equals another. No straight single substitution would fool an expert five minutes, however.

He has tables which show what letters occur most frequently. E is most frequent, followed by T, A, O and N.

If L and J occur most frequently in a ciphered message, the cryptographer puts them down as probably equaling E or T, and so on. After a little fitting and trying, words begin to take shape and he can guess at the rest.

"Double substitution" ciphers are more baffling. Most of them are based on something called the "Vigenere Tableau," after the Frenchman who invented it several hundred years ago.

Even so, the Vigenere Tableau, with a short key word, is easy pickings for the trained cryptographer.

Using tables of "bigrams" (frequent two-letter combinations) and "trigrams" (three-letters), he could eventually work the problem, but maybe by that time the key would be changed.

Almost all modern ciphers are some variety of the Vigenere Tableau. Even the complex ciphering machines stem back to it. There are ways of complicating it almost beyond recognition, but every complication so far invented has been unravelled by methods too tortuous to describe here.

There is another general type of cipher called the "transposition." A simple method would be this:

First write a message as follows—

NW S H TM FR L GO
O I TE IE O AL OD etc.

Then rewrite the whole thing in groups of five letters:

NWSHT MFRLG OMNOI TEIEO ALODE etc.

Almost any transposition cipher can be solved by looking for bigrams and trigrams formed by lettering occurring at regular intervals.

Another Way

An important problem for the cryptographer is to decide what kind of cipher he is dealing with. A single substitution is marked by appearance of letters in normal frequency as far as numbers go. In double substitution usually no letter will appear many more times than any other. Transposition is marked by normal frequency.

Of course, if the message has been coded, then enciphered by transposition and then re-enciphered by some tableau variation, the cryptographer would have a long, hard day.

The Miami area is planning to hold a World's Fair there. If it contemplates planting a time capsule, as in New York, we suggest the following inclosures:

1—An eleven-race dog program.

2—A weekly newspaper threat by the sheriff to stop gambling.

3—A monthly warning by the police chief that gangsters will not be tolerated in the area.

4—A photo of the Seminole Indians making their annual visit to Hialeah and looking like highly civilized people compared to the white folks engaged in the madness of trying to win the daily double.

5—A paper with the standing headlines "Blizzard Hits North" and "Florida Influx Breaks Records."

Doctor's Orders

By Truman Twill

The most useful excuse in modern times is "Doctor's Orders," the only perfect answer in the book. It takes care of everything.

If the company stays late and it's time to go to bed, just put out the cat, lock the doors and march upstairs, calling down over the banister with a smug smile: "Doctor's orders. You know how it is."

If the stuff set out for supper leaves you pale and uninteresting, don't beat around the cold potatoes. Come right out with it and demand what you want, or no contest. "Doctor's orders."

Are you one of those who shudder at the thought of medicinal potions ladled out in the name of social drinking and always look for the nearest geranium pot, to dispose of the poisonous brew? Suffer no more. "Doctor's orders." Most unfortunate. Nothing but straight stuff. No mixtures."

Would you like an excuse to escape from the things that set your teeth on edge—discords on the radio, ballet dancing, shrill soprano lecturers with long hair and short ideas? Just put on your golly-I-just-remembered expression and explain, "Well, you know how it is but doctor's orders . . ."

Perhaps you are tired of being a combination Chinese coolie and rickshaw puller and would like to take things easy between innings. Why let your enemies call you lazy and do nothing? Stretch out on the davenport, pat, and mention the doctor's orders.

Or would you like to take a jaunt to Florida when you should be bearing down on the grindstone with the old trunk? Mention doctor's orders. A lot of citizens made it that way during the war and all you're asking for now is the peace.

Do you object to climbing into the [illegible] races in football stadiums? Does it hurt you to stand in line? Would you like a seat on the aisle, instead of next to the wall? Mention doctor's orders. Cough like Camille and [illegible] convincing.

Maybe you are the kind that lacks courage to order two poached eggs and a cup of coffee at a restaurant that aims to sell you the works at three bucks a small copy. Hesitate no longer. Tell what the doctor said. Good old doctor. Yes, that's what old doc said. The very words.

What did he say? Who is he? That's for the American Medical Association to find out. Now

CONGRESS EYES U. S. FUTURE

Compulsory Military Training and Atom Control Up for Decision.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10—Congress worked and talked today on fateful policy decisions for America's future. Here is a quick summary:

Military — General Marshall's new proposal for compulsory military training bumped into this congressional response: "Wait."

Atomic — A house committee hurried into secret session to wrestle with a history-making bill to control atomic development.

Scientific — A senate committee tried to discover what sort of leadership is planned for a federal research agency which congress has been asked to create.

Diplomatic — The senate foreign relations committee is expected to give its blessing to the nomination of Spruille Braden as assistant secretary of state. Committee action has been postponed, pending more information on the Latin American situation

Economic — There was an outburst over allowing a Communist to testify on the "full employment" bill. There also was more testimony from employers today against raising the minimum wage from 40 to 65 cents.

A large, angry Texan, Rev. Wright Patman, protested because the house expenditures committee has consented for Communist William Z. Foster to appear on the "full employment" bill.

Patman is a leading sponsor of the bill. He has heard that Foster plans to support it, too. That is why Patman is mad. He thinks this would hurt the bill's chances.

Here is more detail of the military, atomic, and scientific doings:

General Marshall in his report to the secretary of war asked for one year of compulsory military training. Most law-makers seemed to have this attitude: wait and see how many volunteers the Army and Navy can drum up.

If the recruiting campaign fails, then some members are willing to try compulsory training. Others aren't.

Marshall's recommendations for strengthening the National Guard and for spending plenty on scientific research were well received in congress.

Today, veterans could keep an eye on the senate office building.

TWO NATIVE SONS GET OHIOANA AWARD

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10—Two native Ohioans — a nationally known comedian and an engineer —will receive the 1945 Ohioana library awards for oustanding contributions to their professions at the organization's annual meeting here Oct. 27.

Library spokesmen reported last night Comedian Joe E. Brown, born at Holgate (Henry county), and Dr. Arthur E. Morgan of Yellow Springs, a former president of Antioch college, had been selected for the award.

Brown was named for entertaining servicemen at world battle fronts. Mrs. Anna M. Brown of Toledo, the comedian's mother, plans to accompany her son here for the presentation.

Dr Morgan's work was based on his noteworthy work in hydraulic engineering. Morgan, a director of the Tennessee Valley Authority in its early stages of development, is credited with planning and directing 69 major conservation dams.

Judge Bodey Resigns Liquor Board Post

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10—Gov Lausche today accepted the resignation of Judge Lowell C. Bodey as a member of the state liquor board and named Harry A. Mettler, 38, a Nelsonville Democrat, to succeed him immediately.

Judge Bodey, whose home is at Urbana, had been ill for some time with a heart condition.

The governor announced that Mettler, whose term runs until February, 1949, would take office at once.

The new liquor board member, a graduate of Ohio State university, was prosecuting attorney of Athens county in 1941-42, and was reelected for the succeeding term but resigned in 1943 to enter the Navy. He was discharged three weeks ago with the rank of lieutenant senior grade.

20 Years Ago U. S. Was Convinced Wars Were Ended

By J. M. ROBERTS JR.
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Twenty years ago today America was preparing to get rich quick, wars were a thing of the past, the Washington disarmament conference had left us feeling that we didn't even need the small defensive Navy agreed upon, and all was right with the world.

A few voices raised in protest were drowned out by the clamorous search for normalcy. The United States Army was limited by law to 280,000 men, congress had appropriated for 144,000, and actual strength was 133,000.

To be sure, German failure to disarm under the Versailles treaty had forced extension of the original time limit for occupation of Cologne and the Rhineland, but the troops finally were moving out of the Ruhr. Mussolini had mobilized his Fascist National Guard and closed all rival political clubs.

The American acting consul at Leghorn, Italy, was seriously beaten by Fascisti.

League Takes Action

But the League of Nations agreed on the initial steps of a further disarmament program and signed new protocols covering "humane" warfare. Germany, under the man who built the Hindenburg line which American troops had been called upon to break in 1918, was at the forefront among the signers.

Twenty years ago today, at Locarno, the nations of Europe were in a conference which resulted in numerous agreements to preserve them "from the scourge of war" and providing for "peaceful settlement of disputes of every nature which might eventually arrive between them."

Germany agreed to liquidate her general staff, place a civilian at the head of her military establishment, and to prevent military training of German youth.

That was twenty years ago.

Today General Marshall, after one of the most calamitous wars in history, reminds America that a rich nation which lays down its arms, in this age of terrifying and fantastic new weapons, courts catastrophe.

Two hundred thousand Americans have died in combat in the past four years, many of them, as Marshall's report infers, because America didn't have proper organization and weapons. He says Germany had some better weapons and more of them — better tanks, better guns, better powder.

"The fact that we overtook Germany's head start on the atomic explosive is comforting," he says in a neat bit of understatement, "but certainly should not lull us again into a state of complacent inertia."

The Marshall report, in the light of history, supplies its own emphasis. For instance:

"These facts should be considered along with the policy regarding the manufacture of explosives after the last war and the scientific development that should or would have followed in the plants of the great commercial manufacturers had they not been subjected to bitter attack as 'merchants of death'."

Legion Head Lists Top 'Wants' of Ex-Servicemen in Talk Here

Job, Marriage and Family Rated First by State Commander Eaton; County and Post Officers Installed.

By BOB BYRD

What do returning servicemen want?

The state commander of the American Legion, Harry Eaton of Ashland, who says he has put that question to thousands of them, told Marion county American Legion members here last night that two answers cover most of their wants.

First, they want a job. Second, they want to get married if they're not already married, settle down to a normal life and raise a family.

"They don't want any Flag waving, they don't want to be cheered to the skies as heroes, nor do they want alms," Commander Eaton declared as he analyzed the results of his conversations with men back from World War II.

The state commander was guest of honor and principal speaker at countywide installation of American Legion officers last night at Legion Dugout on South High street.

He emphasized the likes and dislikes of the returning veterans to drive home the tasks confronting the American Legion today.

One of the big challenges is for the "old boys," those of World War I whose average age is 52, to adjust themselves to the new blood the Legion will get from veterans of this war, the "young boys" whose average age is 25, he said. And he emphasized that the job of "adjusting" is for the old boys, not the young ones, because in the returning veterans of the war will be the leadership for the Legion, for America and for the world in the next 50 years. He emphasized the importance of the old timers doing everything possible to pave the way for enrollment of the young men in the Legion.

Question for Elders

He asserted they "far surpass us of the last war in leadership and education," and asked, "Shall we pave the way for them to join us in the Legion or shall we hesitate, fearful that they might make fools of themselves—like their Dads did after the last war?"

"We're going to be either stumbling blocks or stepping stones for our boys," he said.

He said the Ohio department of the Legion has a two-phase program to meet some of the challenges of today. One will be a statewide American Legion day tentatively scheduled for Dec. 15 with plans made for all newspapers, radio stations and other media to carry information about the Legion and tell the story of how it orginated and made possible the passage of the G. I. Bill of Rights. The second phase of the program, he said, is to give the veterans a rehabilitation program second to none, and to this end the entire rehabilitation program of the Legion is being reorganized.

List of Officers

Installation of county and post officers was conducted by Gail Baldwin of Marysville, Sixth district commander of the Legion. D. J. MacDonald was installed as county commander and the post officers were installed as follows:

Bird-McGinnis post of Marion—Craig M. Rogers, commander; Robert Brown, first vice commander; Gerald Messenger, second vice commander; Jewell Ralston, immediate past commander; Earl West, adjutant; W. J. Boyd, sergeant at arms; W. C. Morehouse, chaplain; Harry Baldauf, financial officer; Mrs. Evelyn Reynolds, historian; J. A. Dripps, executive committee; M. E. Baldwin, holding committee; Fred Berg, burial plot committee.

Prospect—Harry Reynolds, commander; Willie Huffine, vice commander; Kenneth W. Davids, adjutant; Harry Gast, financial officer (installed for 25th term). The other three officers of Prospect post are veterans of World War II.

Caledonia—E. E. Leathem, commander; Harold Williams, first vice commander; Roy Groves, second vice commander; Marion Grace, adjutant; L. C. Sickel, financial officer.

LaRue — A. B. LaRue, commander; Richard Watkins, first vice commander; Willis Boles, financial officer; adjutant yet to be named

Although Commander Rogers of Bird-McGinnis post is beginning his second consecutive term, Commander Eaton presented him with a past commander's badge in behalf of the post, explaining members of the post wished to present the badge as an expression of confidence in him as he began his second term.

Dinner Program

Prior to the installation service, the Legion auxiliary served a dinner to a large group of members and guests in the Dugout basement. County Commander MacDonald was toastmaster for a program that followed the dinner. Those introduced for brief remarks included William J. Gibson, machinists' mate first class, Marion man who was captured in the fall of Corregidor and who spent 40 months as a prisoner of the Japs; Capt. Edwin Rackham, Army recruiting officer stationed here; Fred B. Scherff, manager of the Marion U. S. Employment Service; Lt. Francis Fields, veteran of overseas service who will serve in the veterans service department of the USES office; Carmen A. Sullivan, in charge of Marion's veterans administration office; William Markley of Washington C. H.; Mrs. Evelyn Reynolds, Navy club commandant; Major L. H. Larsen of Marion; Russell Noble, past commander of the post at Marysville; Scott Creviston, commander of the post at Marysville and Sixth district adjutant; District Commander Baldwin, State Commander Eaton; John Sullivan, Horace L. Coxey Jr., a private first class with the medical corps before his discharge from the 37th Division.

Laval Wrote Own Defense

Condemned Premier's Unused Account of Vichy Rule Made Public.

Associated Press Correspondent Mel Most and New York Post Correspondent Peggy Poor, with authorization from defense representatives of Pierre Laval, have obtained first public access to a manuscript embodying the defense of the former chief of the Vichy government. The remarkable document, penned by Laval in a race against time, evidently was intended for use in any future trial —even in the event of his execution).

By MEL MOST

PARIS, Oct. 10—Pierre Laval's written account of the defense he scorned to make to the court which condemned him to death yesterday was made public today by his counsel.

The document was written by Laval in his dungeon cell.

In the manuscript, to which only two American reporters had access, Laval acknowledged that "De Gaulle was right" in his decision to move to London to continue France's fight against the Germans.

The former Vichy chief of government, who 14 times was a minister and thrice a premier of France, took up the charges against him one by one. Some of his replies:

To the charge he sought to negotiate a peace during the "phoney war" before the German 1940 blitz on France:

That Mussolini furnished the initiative in this through an emissary. Laval said he offered to undertake a mission which Premier Edouard Daladier could later disavow if it failed, but Daladier rejected the idea. A second secret emissary arrived from Mussolini the day before Italy attacked France, but never reached the government, Laval wrote.

Concerning the charge he organized the Montoire meeting between Hitler and Marshal Petain and arranged subsequent collaboration, Laval replied the armistice itself rather than anything he did brought about collaboration.

He said he never ordered the scuttling of the fleet at Toulon.

Laval devoted much of his defense to the matter of persecution of Jews, Free Masons and Communists, saying he had, far from participating in it, attempted to protect them.

STATE COMPENSATION CLAIMS EFFECTIVE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10—Four major changes in the workmen's compensation act affecting injured workers and those afflicted with occupational diseases will become effective Friday, the Ohio industrial commission reported

The commission said the changes were made to conform with liberalized workmen's compensation voted by the last legislature. They apply only to injuries and occupational disease disabilities occurring on or after Friday.

Principal changes from the present law were listed as:

1 — Maximum weekly rates increased from $21 to $24.50. This increase to continue in effect to Sept. 30, 1947, and then revert back to the present maximum weekly rate of $21.

2 — Maximum death award to widow or dependents of a killed employe increased from $7,000 to $7,500.

3 — Period of time for filing of a silicosis claim has been extended to a period not to exceed six months after diagnosis of the disability by a licensed physician. In silicosis cases the claimant now has the right to go back eight years before disability began to show an injurious exposure. Formerly the claimant could go back only two years to show injurious exposure.

4 — Claimants can file under the amendments to the act an application for determination of percentage of permanent partial disability at any time after 40 weeks following conclusion of the initial period of total disability without being deemed to have elected to accept the determination as found by the commission.

Britain's Dock Strike Threat to Food Stocks

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 10 — Britain's worst dock strike in 20 years continued to spread today despite a food ministry warning the tying up of food ships for a few days more would result in a sharp cut in the nation's already meager table supplies.

At least 45 ships loaded with thousands of tons of meat, bacon, cheese, butter, lard and oranges at among 300 vessels lying idle at 15 piers from London to northern Ireland as a result of the unauthorized walkout of 33,000 dockhands.

The strikers are demanding 25 shillings (about $5) a day basic pay, an increase of eight shillings ($1.60).

TRUMAN PROPOSES POWER PROGRAM

By The Associated Press

GILBERTSVILLE, Ky., Oct. 10—President Truman voices assurance today the nation soon will "press forward" in the development of all its great river valleys with traditional pioneering spirit.

Speaking at the dedication of the Tennessee Valley Authority's Kentucky dam here, he called TVA "just plain common sense" and added:

"The valleys of America await their full development. The time has come—now that materials and manpower are more plentiful—to press forward. The days of the pioneer are not dead. The development of our natural resources calls for men of courage, of vision, of endurance, just as in the pioneering days of old."

The President said the policy of regional decentralization under which the Tennessee river has been harnessed for power, flood control, navigation and other purposes "ought to be followed in the other river valleys as regional agencies are created and set to work."

At the same time, he said "details of administration and control" may "have to be different" in the development of other valleys.

In an address broadcast regionally only and apparently not regarded as a major policy speech, the President said the underlying "common sense principles" of TVA "can provide guidance and counsel to the people in other regions."

At the same time he declared: "Let me emphasize that in the last analysis such development is a matter for the people themselves to decide."

Kentucky dam is the 16th TVA dam to be completed, and No. 10 on the original 10-dam program that was expanded with the advent of war to supply needed power.

The President said it will hold back four million acre feet of flood water from the lower Ohio and Mississippi rivers and that it also will provide electricity and "a deep-water navigable channel 183 miles long" while other TVA dams carry the deep water channel all the way to Knoxville, Tenn., 650 miles away.

The victims were Elmer Spoerke and Edward Pekarek.

MORE IDLE IN NEW DISPUTES

460,000 on Strike as Expected Decline Below 400,000 Mark Backfires.

By The Associated Press

Expected reduction of nation's strike lines to under 400,000 this week backfires as new labor disputes increase idle to around 460,000.

Major trouble spots:

Coal—Showdown expected in government sponsored conference aimed to settle critical coal strike as Secretary Schwellenbach ready to offer compromise to union and operators; 749 mines closed, 182,000 workers off job, steel production sag.

Shipping—Continuing strike of New York longshoremen leaves world's busiest harbor virtually idle; 369 ships tied up; some troopships to sail to Europe without cargo; foreign freight piles up.

Motion Pictures—Appeals made to President Truman, Governor Warren of California and AFL President William Green to lend aid in effecting settlement of long AFL jurisdictional dispute; sporadic fighting between pickets and strikers.

Automotive—Negotiations reopened in Detroit between CIO United Automobile Workers and Chrysler in union's demand for 30 per cent wage rate increase from industry's Big Three—Chrysler, Ford and General Motors.

Lumber—No major developments in walkout of 61,700 AFL lumber workers in five Pacific northwest states.

New labor disputes put additional thousands of workers on the nation's strike lines today as the number of idle mounted to around 460,000.

But Secretary of Labor Schwellenbach in Washington was hopeful of ending the critical strikes in the soft coal fields, which would enable some 182,000 workers to go back to their jobs in the 749 closed mines.

The labor chief was ready to offer a new compromise proposal to bituminous operators and United Mine Workers officials, headed by President John L. Lewis, and he said they "should be able to agree."

Additional steelworkers were forced to quit work because of coal shortages and production in many mills was cut by the closing of blast furnaces and open hearths. Miners off their jobs by the strikes included 75,600 in West Virginia; 58,467 in Pennsylvania; 27,200 in Kentucky; 8,000 in Tennessee; 8,000 in Ohio and 5,000 in Indiana. With no coal to move, 50 trains and 300 employes of the Louisville & Nashville railroad in Kentucky were idle.

New York's crippling port-wide strike of 35,000 to 60,000 longshoremen left the world's busiest harbor virtually idle again today, the 10th day of the walkout in a dispute over a new contract. Thousands of tons of cargo went unmoved as 369 ships were tied up.

Delays Troop Return

The strike, said Capt. H. R. Bishop of the war shipping administration, was delaying the return of "thousands of troops," and 17 Liberty ships had been ordered to leave their cargo behind and sail for Europe immediately to pick up loads of returning servicemen. Army and UNRRA cargo previously had been carried by the vessels on trips to Europe. He said more than 110,000 tons of relief cargo and army supplies have piled up, including 8,000 tons of perishable meat for the Army.

Today all local unions of the AFL International Longshoremen's Association were expected to vote on whether to return to work tomorrow.

On the Pacific coast, 40 ships were idle at piers because of refusal of members of CIO Marine cooks and stewards union to sign up under reduced personnel rules made by the WSA.

Tension mounted in the motion picture industry in Hollywood as AFL strike leaders said picketing will continue indefinitely "until Warner Brothers capitulate or close their studio. x x x" Clashes between pickets and nonstriking movie workers outside the studio have injured 111 persons. Production was halted.

WIFE SAYS KRAMER KNEW KILLING WRONG

By The Associated Press

LUENEBURG, GERMANY, Oct. 10—Frau Josef Kramer testified under cross examination today that her husband naturally realized that the gassing of concentration camp internees was "very wrong."

Kramer and 44 guards and attendants are on trial before a British military court for mass killings at Belsen. A defense attempt to inject discussion of the atomic bomb into the hearing was balked by the court, which ruled it had nothing to do with the questions at issue.

The mother of three, Frau Kramer smiled at Kramer, told of their marriage Oct. 16, 1937, and said she had been with him at all times at the camps in which he was an officer.

She said her husband told her at Oswiecim that "of those responsible for destroying so many persons in the gas chamber, I don't think they can be sleeping easily."

Fritz Klein, 57-year-old SS doctor, testified selections for the gas chamber were made by physicians "on orders from Hoess" (commandant of the whole Oswiecim camp).

Warns U. S. To Be Prepared

world and therefore the political world on notice that this vast power, linked to our tremendous resources, wealth and production, is immediately available.

"There can be no question that all the nations of the world will respect our views accordingly, creating at least a probability of peace on earth and good will among men rather than disaster upon disaster in a tormented world where the very processes of civilization itself are constantly threatened."

The only effective defense a nation can now maintain is the power of attack and that power can not be in machinery alone, Marshall said.

He foresaw the possibility of a future war in which the United States might be showered, as southern England was, with rocket-propelled weapons — but new ones having the explosive power of the atomic bomb.

If this should come to pass, he said, the United States will "bleed and suffer to the point of annihilation, unless we can move armies of men into the enemy's bases of operation and seize the sites from which he launches his attacks."

Quotes Arnold

The atomic bomb is not the only scientific development making the "possibilities of the future so terrifying," wrote Marshall. And he presented a hitherto secret report by Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the air forces, to show what has or is being accomplished.

Arnold said we can direct rockets to targets by electronic devices and other new instruments which "home" into sources of light, heat and magnetism — streaking unerringly to the hearts of big factories, attracted by the heat of the furnaces.

We are making bombs weighing 45,000 pounds and have 100,000 pounders on the drawing boards.

Within the next few years there will be jet-propelled bombers with 500 to 600 mile an hour speed.

Development of others, operating in the stratosphere at speeds faster than sound "is a certainty" and these aircraft "will have sufficient range to attack any spot on earth and return to a friendly base."

Weapons such as these make the air approaches points of extreme danger, Arnold said, adding:

"With the continued development of weapons and techniques now known to us, the cities of New York, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Chicago, or San Francisco may be subject to annihilation from other continents in a matter of hours."

His second biennial report nominally embraced the period July 1, 1943 to June 30, 1945, but Marshall expanded it to include Aug. 10 when Japan sued for peace.

He wrote Secretary Patterson that "for the first time since assuming this office six years ago, it is possible for me to report that the security of the United States of America is entirely in our hands."

Looking back to the black days of 1942 when Axis expansion was in its flood tide, Marshall said:

"In those hours Germany and Japan came so close to complete domination of the world that we do not yet realize how thin the threat of Allied survival had been stretched."

He asserted that "in good conscience this nation can take little credit for its part in staving off disaster in those critical days. It is certain that the refusal of the British and Russian peoples to accept what appeared to be inevitable defeat was the great factor in the salvage of our civilization. Of almost equal importance was the failure of the enemy to make the most of the situation.

Marshall said that interrogation of Axis high commanders showed the original three members of the Axis—Germany, Italy and Japan —acted individually in directing their own aggression.

"Here," commented Marshall, "were three criminal nations united for loot and seeking greedily to advance their own self-interests by war, yet unable to agree on a strategic over-all plan for accomplishing a common objective."

Marshall listed these steps in Germany's military downfall:

(1) Failure to invade England after Dunkirk.

(2) Failure of the 1941 campaign against Moscow which led Hitler to remove his commander-in-chief, General Von Brauchitsch—"the turning point of the war."

(3) Failure of the Stalingrad seige, another Hitler idea.

(4) Failure of the Ardennes counterattack last winter—also a Hitler mistake and his last on the grand scale.

The general said the Japanese strategic plan included invasion of the Hawaiian Islands and the Aleutians, subjecting the northwest United States to aerial bombardment, raiding west coast aviation industries and then seizing critical areas.

The plan failed at the start, he said, when the enemy did not land troops on Hawaii to deny the United States the launching base for the American advance across the Pacific.

Marshall disclosed that the United States had ready a detailed plan for the invasion of the Japanese homeland, calling for two general operations.

The first was scheduled for this fall, aimed at the southern island of Kyushu. The second, timed for about four months later, was to have put two American armies ashore in the immediate area of Tokyo, on the main island of Honshu.

These were "our plans for final victory in World War II should Japan fight to a last ditch national suicide," the general said.

But "we had other plans which we anticipated might bring a much speedier end to the war"—atomic bombardment by air.

He noted that Japan's surrender offer came four days after the first atomic bomb hit Hiroshima.
